Veterinary Check-up

Schedule a visit to the vet shortly after bringing your puppy home. The vet can ensure your puppy is healthy, provide vaccinations, and give advice on nutrition and care.

Nutritious Diet

Feed your puppy high-quality puppy food appropriate for their age, size, and breed. Follow feeding guidelines provided by your vet or the food manufacturer. Avoid giving them human food, especially those that are toxic to dogs like chocolate, grapes, and onions.

Hydration

Always ensure your puppy has access to fresh water. Dehydration can be a serious issue, especially in warmer weather or during play.

Regular Exercise

French Bulldogs are relatively low-energy dogs, but they still need regular exercise to stay healthy and maintain a healthy weight. Short walks and play sessions are usually sufficient.

Socialization

Introduce your puppy to different people, animals, and environments gradually to help them become well-adjusted adults. Proper socialization can prevent behavioral issues later in life.

Training and Mental Stimulation

Start training your puppy early using positive reinforcement techniques. Mental stimulation through training, puzzle toys, and interactive play can prevent boredom and destructive behavior.

Grooming

French Bulldogs have short coats that require minimal grooming, but regular brushing can help remove loose fur and reduce shedding. Clean their ears regularly and trim their nails as needed.

Dental Care

Establish a dental care routine early by brushing your puppy's teeth regularly. Dental health is important for overall well-being and can prevent dental issues later in life.

Regular Vet Visits

Schedule regular check-ups with the vet to monitor your puppy's health and address any concerns promptly. Vaccinations, deworming, and parasite prevention should be kept up to date.

Safety

Puppy-proof your home by removing hazardous items and securing dangerous areas. Keep medications, chemicals, small objects, and electrical cords out of reach.

Love and Attention

Provide your puppy with plenty of love, attention, and affection. Spending quality time together strengthens your bond and promotes emotional well-being.

Rest and Sleep

Ensure your puppy has a comfortable and quiet place to rest. Puppies need plenty of sleep to grow and develop properly.
